This is a true story about a boy raised in small-town America, with an unusual, special gift but who was afraid to use it because of what a conservative church parishioner had told him at an early age. He has faced many adversities including life threatening medical trauma, bigotry, discrimination, verbal and physical abuse, and a disease that was thought to be terminal. His positive attitude and "can do" spirit have allowed him to rise above it all and he has dealt with every one of life's adversities and has overcome them. This is an amazing story that will take the reader on an emotional roller coaster through tears of sadness and shouts of triumph, as well as uproarious laughter. Through a unique understanding and spiritual awakening he grew up to embrace his very special gift, and has learned how to use, and will continue to use, this gift in his quest to help others. This book causes the reader to examine his own life, thoughts, and actions ... regardless of his or her place in society.
